“ Bruce was at the Jefferson Parish Library often where he was a ready conversationalist. He always had interesting and fascinating things to say. Bruce was a man of God, who believed what he said about religion. May he rest with God in eternal peace, joy, and happiness. My condolences to his family.

“ I just posted this on my Facebook page with the obituary attached: I got the sad news tonight, that a friend I usually saw at Barnes and Nobles (Metairie) as well as the Jefferson Parish Library, suffered a heart attack and died in April. I knew he was lonely and not in the best of health, but always liked talking to him, esp. about Navy stuff (he was a Vietnam-era Navy vet). Bruce, you will be missed. I can only hope your death was quick and painless. RIP. "Semper Fortis" my friend.

I met Bruce at the Open Door Fellowship in New Orleans. He was a tremendous guitar player and taught me how to play. He was such a great great friend. I wish that we could have reconnected before he left this earth but I'm sure we'll be reminiscing in heaven at some point. Love you Bruce!

I will always remember Bruce singing "eating chicken on the ground!". Bruce was an amazing musician and I loved hearing him play and singing with him. He had some stories he loved to share and they were fun to listen to. I'm just finding out about his passing. I know he is with Jesus in Heaven and playing his guitar again. My mom has joined him with her violin! See you on the other side Bruce! Love Sheryl Tyree
