“ Mr Don will remain in my heart forever - your house was my 2nd home so he was my 2nd dad. He was funny and I knew how much he loved all of his girls-even me! He really taught me a lot & gave me honest advice when I needed it. I will cherish my memories of him & please know my thoughts & prayers are with your family now.

“ Uncle Donald was my fun uncle. He was so warm, funny, and affectionate with everyone. He always had a smile, and he always made me smile. When I worked with him and Papa over the summers, he used to give me rides home in his cool car. He loved his wife, daughters, and grandchildren so much. Within five minutes of conversation with him, a stranger could tell that he lived for them.

He was always talking about his grandchildren. They were the apples of his eye. One time at a holiday party, I think I asked him about Emma. I swear that he pulled an 8 x 10 framed picture of her from his coat to show me. He must have just been walking around with that photo ready to show it to everyone. He was so proud of his grandchildren.

At Uncle Alvin's funeral, I realized (for the first time) how much he reminded me of my Papa. They always seemed so different to me because Uncle Donald was the cheerful, fun-loving one, and Papa was always fussing with us. But after Papa died, I noticed how much Uncle Donald's voice, speech, and mannerisms reminded me so much of my grandfather, his brother. I was so moved to hear that familiar voice. I didn't want to leave his side.
