When I approached the barber shop, I was saddened to learn that Joe had passed away. I had not seen him in several months and was not aware that he was ill. I am sorry for your loss. I pray for his loving family and friends who are coping and managing to move on to fulfill their lives as he did.

I would like to recommend "The Miracle of Death" by Betty J. Kovács.

The inevitability of death has weighed like a stone on the human heart. So much fear, grief, anger and emotional pain have been associated with it. The greatest sorrow, the greatest fear we can experience in our lives is the loss of a beloved parent, child or companion, believing that he or she is lost to us forever. The Miracle of Death is a story that can reach into our hearts and undo the spell of that sorrow, that fear, that loss; its healing power can loosen the grip of our fear of death.
