“ All of us at The Terraces have beautiful memories of being and talking with you. You were always a good listener and communicator. I personally enjoyed talking with you about a variety of subjects and was hoping to find out more about your trip to Spain. Vaya con Dios, Ken.

“ Ken was most in his element when he ran a theater program at the church community center at St. Charles and Napoleon, Mostly original one-act plays were done there. A collection of pieces themed to the city, "Voices of New Orleans," inspired the first edition of "Native Tongues." Among the playwrights: Lisa D'Amour, whose "Detroit" was produced in both Chicago and New York. You could walk off the street and see Ken and find your play produced .Through Ken, the church also provided audition and rehearsal spaces to many theater groups.
